Select Poetry.

HAVE COURAGE TO SAY NO.

You're starting to-day on life's journey,
Along on the highway of life;
You'll meet with a thousand temptations,
Each city with evil is rife.
This world is a stage of excitement:
There's danger wherever you go;
But if you are tempted in weakness,
Have courage, my boy, to say no.

The syren's sweet song may allure you;
Beware of her cunning and art;
Whenever you see her approaching,
Be guarded and haste to depart.
The billiard saloons are inviting,
Decked out in their tinsel and show;
You may be invited to enter;
Have courage, my boy, to say no.

The bright ruby wine may be offered—
No matter how tempting it be,
From poison that stings like an adder,
My boy, have the courage to flee.
The gambling hells are before you,
Their lights, how they dance to and fro.
If you should be tempted to enter,
Think twice, even thrice, ere you go.

In courage alone lies your safety
When you the long journey begin,
And trust in a Heavenly Father
Will keep you unspotted from sin.
Temptations will go on increasing,
As streams from rivulet flow,
But if you are true to your manhood,
Have the courage, my boy, to say no.

Choice Miscellany.

A VILLAGE TAVERN.

A TOUCHING STORY.

In 18— I was traveling from Ithica to Buffalo, in New York State, by stage, intending to reach my home in season to partake of the annual Thanksgiving dinner with fond and loving friends, at the old homestead. It was a bitter cold morning when we set out, and the roads were frozen hard, there having been considerable mud only a few days before.

The first night was put in at Danville, and on the following morning, when I awoke, I found that the earth was not only covered with snow, but that the snow was falling fast. After an early breakfast, we set out again on wheels, but at the end of eight miles we were forced to take runners, the snow clogging up so that the wheels would not run. When night came, we found ourselves obliged to stop at a small village, only twenty miles from where we set out in the morning.

A good supper was provided at the inn, and the place had the appearance of comfort. We had just sat down to supper when the wind began to blow furiously, and we could see in the dim light without, that the snow was being whirled and driven about in a furious manner. There was a fire in the small sitting room, and thither we passengers, six of us, adjourned. We sat there and conversed until near nine o'clock; and then I went out into the bar-room to smoke a cigar previous to retiring.

In the bar-room I found a bright wood fire burning, and some dozen people were sitting there, smoking and drinking. (This was long before the introduction of the Maine laws.) Several of the company I judged to be teamsters; a rough, hardy, goodnatured set, who were enjoying themselves hugbily over a mug of flip. Then there were several whom I found to be villagers—men who lived near the inn—a set of village politicians and newsmongers, who made the bar-room their place of social evening meeting.

I had lighted my cigar and taken my seat near the fire, when I noticed a Buffalo skin on one end of the settee, opposite to where I sat, and I was confident there was a human being beneath it. I supposed it might be a stable hand who had been at work hard, or was expected to be up most of the night, and was now getting a little sleep. I was looking at the buffalo, and thus meditating, when I headr a low, death-like groan come up from beneath it, and in a few moments more the robe was thrown upon the floor, and the man who had reposed beneath came down upon the top of it, and there he lay for some moments like a dead man. I had just started up, when four of the villagers hastened to his assistence. They lifted him to his feet, and after considerable effort, he managed to stand up.

My God! what a thrill struck to my heart when I saw that face. It was one of noble features; a brow high and amply developed, over which clustered a mass of dark, glossy ringlets; the face beautifully proportioned, and each separate feature most exquisitely chiseled.—But what an expression rested there now!

The great, dark eyes had a vacant, idiotic stare; the face was as pale as death, and the lips looked dry and parched, and much discolored. His clothes were torn and soiled, and one of his hands bloody. He was surely not more than five and thirty, and his appearance would at once indicate a man of more than common abilities. But the demon had him, and made him now below the brute.

"How do you feel now, George?" asked one of the men who had gone to his assistence.

But he only groaned in reply, and he was soon persuaded to lie down again, being told that he would soon feel better. As soon as he was on the settee once more, and had the buffalo over him, the men returned to their seats.

"Who is that chap?" asked one of the teamsters, looking toward the villagers who had been assisting the unfortunate man.

"That's George Lockland," returned a stout, honest looking man.

"Does he belong here?"

"Yes. Did ye never hear of him?"

The teamster replied that he had not.

"Well," resumed the fat man, "it's too bad, I declare 'tis. Lockland might be one of the first men of the town if he'd a mind to; but you see he will drink; and the worst of it is, he makes a fool of himself. He can't touch it without doing just as he's doing now. He started here as a lawyer, and a smart one he is, too.

Why, he can argue old Upton right out of his boots. But ye see he's lost all his best customers now. They darcn't trust him with business, 'cause he aint sure of ever doing it. He's got one of the beautifulest little wives you ever saw; and one of the handsomest children.—But, poor things! I pity 'em. Then there's another thing; rum operates ferently on him from what it does on some folks. It doesn't show itself on the outside, as it does a'most everybody else, but it seems to eat him up inside. You see how pale he looks; well, he's always so when he's on one of these times. He don't eat nothin', and I don,t suppose he'll put a bit of food into his stomach for a week to come."

"How long has he been so?" asked the teamster.

"How d'ye mean?"

"Why, how long both ways? How long since he took to drink, an' how long he's been drunk now?"

"Well, he's took to drink more or less ever since he came from college; but it's about a year that he's been down hard at it. Ye see, folks began to see how slack he was in business, and they wouldn't give him any job of consequence to do. I 'spose that sort o'set him agoin' in this fashion. And as for this drunk, I should say he was on it for a fortnight. He's got down now as low as he can get, and live, and I guess he'll get sober in a day or two.

"But where does he get his liquor?" asked the questioner.

"You must ask Mike Fingal that question," was the other's answer.

All eyes were now turned upon the landlord, who now stood behind the bar. He was evidently troubled at this turn, and moved uneasily upon his high stool.

"Mike Fingal," spoke the teamster, "do you sell that man rum?"

"Yes, I do," the rellow replied, with an effort, "Don't I sell you the same when you call for it?"

"But I arn't a poor drunkard, and you know it. That arn't no excuse, Mike; I shouldn't think you would do it.

"But, when he wants rum, he's bound to have it; and if I don't let him have it, somebody else would," the host replied.

"Now, that's odd?" energetically pursued the teamster. "On the same ground you might take a pistol, and go out and rob folks, because, if you didn't, some one else would. But that isn't here or there. The thing is, I don't see what kind of a heart you can have to do it."

The conversation was here interrupted by a sound in the street. The wind was still howling madly, and the snow was driving against the window, but above the voice of the storm, came the wailing of one in distress. It was surely the cry of a child for help. We were all on our feet in a moment, and the lantern was quickly lighted. My hat was already on my head—or, my cap, rather—and I went out with the rest. All went but the landlord, and his wretched customer, who occupied the settee. It was some moments before I could see at all—the snow came drifting into my face so; but I soon managed to turn my head, and then went on. The wind, as it came sweeping through the stable, had piled up a huge bank of snow across the street, and in this bank we found a female with a child in her arms. She seemed faint and frozen, but yet she clung to her child. The man who carried the lantern held it up to her face. The features were half covered with snow, but the momentary glare of the lantern was sufficient to reveal to me a face of more than ordinary beauty.

"Heavens!" uttered the man, as he lowered the lantern, and caught the woman in his arms. "Kate Lockland, is this you?" But without waiting for a reply, he turned to the rest of us, and cried, "here, take the child, some of you, and I'll take the mother."

The child was quickly taken, and ere many minutes we were back in the bar-room with our burden. The two were taken to the fire, and the snow brushed from them.

"Who's them?" asked the host.

"Only Kate Lockland and her child," answered the fat man.

"What d'ye bring 'em in here for?" the host uttered, angrily. "Why didn't ye take 'em to your own house, Jim Drake?"

"Cause my house is too far."

The host was coming around the bar, and his eyes were flashing with mingled shame and anger; but before he got fairly out, the stout, burly teamster who had said so much, started up.

"Mike Fingal," he uttered, in tones such as only a man confident of his own physical power can command, "don't ye put a finger on that woman. Don't ye do it. If ye do, I'll crush ye as I would a pizen spider!"

Fingal looked the speaker in the eye for a moment, and then muttered something about a man's having a right to do as he pleased in his own house, he slunk away behind his bar again.

I now turned my attention to the woman and her child. The former was surely not yet thirty years of age, and she was truly a beautiful woman—only she was pale and wan, and her eyes were swollen. She trembled fearfully, and I could see her bosom heave as she tried to choke the sobs that were burstlug forth. The child was a girl about four years old. She clung close to her mother, and seemed frightened into forgetfulness of her cold fingers and feet.

"Kate Lockland, what in Heaven's name are you doin' out this night?" asked Jim Drake.

"Oh, I was trying to find your house, Jim Drake, for I knew you'd give me a shelter. But I got lost in the snow. I wouldn't have cried out in front of this place, but my poor child did. Jim, have you seen George Oh, God, have mercy on him! Poor, dear George! He don't know we are freezing and starving in our own home! No fuel—no food—no—no."

She stopped and burst into tears, and in a moment more George Lockland leaped to his feet.

"Who called me?" he cried, gazing wildly around.

Kate sprang up instinctively; but ere she reached her husband, she stopped.—The man saw her, and for a while, stood riveted to the spot. Soon he gazed around upon the scene about him, and gradually a look of intelligence relieved the utter blank of his hitherto pale and maniac face.

"No fuel! no food!" he whispered, gazing upon his wife, "starving! God have mercy! Who was it said these words? Where am I?"

"George! George!" cried the wife, now rushing forward and flinging her arms about her husband's neck, "don't you know me?"

"Kate! no fire!—there's fire!"

"Aye, George Lockland," said Jim Drake, now starting up; "this aren't yer own home. Don't yer know where ye are?"

Again the poor man gazed about him and as a fearful shudder convulsed his frame, and his hands involuntarily closed over his eyes, I knew that the truth had burst upon him.

"No fuel!—no food!" he groaned.

"O, sir," whispered the wife, catching Drake, convulsively by the arm, "take us away from here, do."

"But you're cold, Kate."

"No, no, no. It's only a little way to your house. I shall die here!"

"Will you go home with me, George?" Jim asked of the husband.

"Anywhere!" gasped the poor man.

"O, my God! no fuel! no food! Kate are you hurt?"

But the wife could not speak, and as soon as posible the fat old villager had the lantern in readiness and half a dozen went to help him.

"Come," he said, "Lead George, one of you. You take Kate—you are stouter than I—and I'll take the litte one." This last was spoken to a stout teamster, and he took the wife in his arms as tho' she had been an infant.

"It's only a few steps," said Drake as he started to go. "I'll send your lantern back, Mike Fingal."

And with this the party left the barroom. I went to the window and saw them wading off through the deep snow and when they were out of sight I passed away. The host came out and began to explain matters; but I was sick enough already, and with an aching heart I left the room.

On the following morning I came down to breckfast later than usual, for I slept very little through the night. About nine o'clock the driver came in and told us that the stage would be ready in five minutes. I went to the bar-room for a cigar. Jim Drake had just come in to bring back the old cloak they had wrapped around the child the night before.

"What'll you have this morning, Jim?" I heard the landlord ask, as he set out a tumbler.

"Nothing," returned the fat man emphatically. "I'm done, Mike Fingal, I'm done with the stuff. "I'll drink no more of it. I wouldn't have come now only poor Lockland was up, and his sweet little wife was hanging about his neck. They were cryin' so that I could not stand it, and I had to clear out. O, it's dreadful, Mike Fingal. You don't know what them poor things have suffered! But they shan't have my example any more."

"All ready," shouted the driver,

THE REPUBLICAN.

R. B. BARGER,.....PROPRIETOR.
W. W. BROWN,.....EDITOR.

Terms: $2.00 Per Annum in Advance.

BELLEFONTE, PA.,

Wednesday Morning, June 15, 1870.

BARGAINS! BARGAINS!!

The Bellefonte REPUBLICAN and the "American Agriculturist."

We are now prepared to offer the people of Centre county, a Great Bargain for the coming year. It is this: To every subscriber who will send us $3.00 in advance, we will send the

and the

for one year. Of the REPUBLICAN we need not speak at present.

The American Agriculturist is a work that no farmer nor housekeeper should be without. As a farm-journal we think it has no superior in the world—certainly none in the United States. It is issued monthly, and the subscription price is $1.50 per annum. By clubbing with the REPUBLICAN you save fifty cents, and secure more good reading matter than you can obtain in any other way for the same money.

We hope the reading public will avail themselves of this very liberal offer.

MATERIAL FOR SALE!

Having purchased the "Bellefonte National" Printing office, for the purpose of consolidating with the BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN, we now offer for sale a complete out-fit for a country newspaper office, including one Liberty Job Press, Stands, Cases, Stones, &c., &c., all of which we will sell at remarkably low prices, for cash or good paper.

We ask it as a special favor that our contemporaries make a note of this or copy it one time.

R. B. BARGER,
Proprietor Bellefonte Republican.

THE NATIONAL SUBSCRIBERS.

Last week we sent a copy of the REPUBLICAN to nearly all of the National subscribers. We missed some in consequence of not having a sufficient number of papers printed.

Although we purchased the good will of that office from the stockholders, no arrangement has yet been made with Mr. Gould to furnish us the National list. At present we cannot tell who paid Mr. Gould in advance, nor can we tell anything about it. If the National subscribers, who paid in advance, do not get their paper, they can easily see that the fault is not with us.

We this week send each of the subscribers to the National, in the county, a copy of the REPUBLICAN, and earnestly solicit them to become subscribers.—The Republican party needs but one Republican paper in the county. This you have in the REPUBLICAN, and we purpose, if properly sustained, to make it a good one.

"WHERE THE TAXES STICK."

"You rogues! you rogues! you're all found out!
And 'we, the people,' in no doubt,
Will put a period to your dashin',
And honest men will come in fashion."

"Where the taxes stick!" yelps the "Cooly" Mandarin of the Reporter and says "The people often wonder where all the money goes to; which is paid in the shape of taxes. We often attempted to show in these columns heretofore, and can give the dear patient readers of the Reporter a further idea just here," and then tells his "dear patient readers" that, "The Secretary of the Treasury recently sent to the House of Representatives a list of some three hundred and fifty Collectors of Internal Revenue, who have not paid over the public monies collected by them," and further says "If justice were meeted out to them they would be serving out a term in the penitentiary, learning some trade." Good for the Cooly, he shows some fines in the article, as it will read more truthfully, by striking out the "Secretary of the Treasury" and inserting instead thereof, the Commissioners and Treasurer of Centre county, sent their annual report of the Receipts and Expenditures, to the people who pays the taxes—that their collectors are indebted for taxes assessed in 1868, and previous years the neat little sum of $37,144 98—that the county is indebted $35,893 74, and that if the Commissioners would perform their sworn duty and compel the defaulting Collectors to pay over the taxes, the county debt would be paid and a surplus of 1,305 23 in the Treasury, and the taxes lowered. And we have it from Fred—the Court House Ring's Cooly, insinuating that "These officials are in arrears" to the county, thousands of dollars and "all the while cutting a big swell and driving big speculations with the peoples money," and "if justice were meeted out to them they would be serving out a term in the penitentiary learning some trade."

This does not appear to us as equal justice, for the County Commissioners and accessories before the fact. It was the Commissioners that appointed, empowered and authorized the Collectors to act, and if they have winked at the crime of their officials and permitted them to retain the peoples' money for years instead of paying it into the Treasury,—thus enabling them to "cut a big swell," and to drive "big speculations," while the Commissioners were running about borrowing money, paying the unlawful and usurious interest of 12 per cent., does it not show "WHERE THE TAXES STICK?" And are they not more culpable than their pet defaulting collectors? This is what the Cooly of the Reporter means, and we are pleased to see him wondering into the right track, and with both hands agree with him, that "We have rascality in office-holders as the rule," (so far as Centre county is concerned) "and honesty the exception." This is talking right out in "meetin" and Fred in saying it is all right we guess, for it is the "God and morality party," plainly meaning the Court House Ring and the Commissioners, the Bellefonte REPUBLICAN has said and will say the truth about, it as it is an inside issue in which the tax-payers of the County are deeply interested. If, therefore, Fred is in earnest, he will doff hat and coat, spit on his hands, go to work, and help to elect a Republican Commissioner and Auditor next fall and thus prevent the defaulting collectors from "cutting big swells and driving big speculations with the peoples money."

THE CENSUS.—Our particular friend and Deputy Marshall of the Bellefonte district, Geo. B. Campbell, has been busily engaged in the performance of his official duties since about the seventh of June. Mr. Campbell is an intelligent, industrious mechanic, well qualified to fill the important duties of his office. His appointment was a good one, and by making it, or rather recommending it, Hon. Wm. H. Armstrong gave the most positive evidence that he is the true friend of the soldier and the workingman. Geo. will do his duty faithfully and well as he did when he was in the army fighting for the "old flag."

THE FIRST POP GUN.

The Democrats of Ohio have met and discharged the first political gun of the year 1870. Their State Convention assembled in Columbus on the 1st day of the month, and nominated a candidate for Secretary of State, one for Supreme Judge, a Comptroller of the Treasury, and a member of the Board of Public Works. But they also made a platform, and as the Ohio Democracy have for a number of years past blocked out or forecast the policy of the party, this platform may be regarded as defining the position of the party throughout the country. It contains nine resolutions. First, it denounces the present tariff, which it calls "a gigantic robbery of the labor and industry of the country," and declares in "favor of a low tariff which closely approximates to a free trade," and will leave "all the necessaries of life absolutely free of duty." Thus with one blow it would destroy the industry of the country by abolishing the protective tariff, and the revenue of the government by abolishing impost duties. As it thus cuts off the sinews of government by this destruction of industry and revenue, it becomes an interesting inquiry whether it means to abolish the government as well. If not, whence would come the means to carry on the various departments, to pay the interest on and reduce the principal of the public debt? We wonder if this is not really repudiation in another suit of clothes. If it is not, pray, what is it? But lest this might not be entirely effective, and the revenue system would still turn the wheels of government, this is to be "remodeled, by abolishing stamps, licenses, tax on sales and incomes." The Democratic way of remodeling a thing, in Ohio, seems to be by abolishing it. Who can doubt that this method would be effective, and, taken with the recommendations in the first resolution, would relieve us of all necessity for "the nuisances" of tariff, revenue, stamps, licenses, income all.

The profligacy of the present administration of the federal government is denounced as managing its affairs to embarrass and bring disaster upon the national interest. As this resolution was passed on the same day when the Secretary of the Treasury published a monthly reduction of the public debt for the month of May of over $14,000,000, and had in round numbers reduced the same a hundred millions during the last fiscal year, it may be taken as a measure by which to test the truth and importance of all the others.

The appropriation of public lands to the construction of railroads by Congress is objected to as endangering a free people, and building up powerful corporations. This will hardly meet with much favor so long as these lands are used as a means of developing the resources of the country and building up trade and commerce, and by thus disposing of a portion of the public domain opening the other to settlers and cultivation. The policy of the government of giving alternate sections to railroad corporations for building roads through them has proved itself of immense benefit to the whole country, and is not likely to endanger a free people.

The recent law of Congress to enforce the fifteenth amendment, that is, to insure honest elections, is of course declared to be "unconstitutional, unjust and oppressive, an invasion of the rights of the States, and subversive of the best interests of the people," because it interferes with the business of repeaters and fraudulent voters generally. It is funny that almost the only thing which this convention is sure is clearly and without doubt in the power of Congress that body is of the opinion it does not possess. It is the power under the Constitution, to assess and collect taxes on the bonds of the United States.

The last resolution of importance is one demanding the repeal of the National Banks, and the substitution of Treasury notes of the United States for the National bank notes.

That is about all of this remarkable document. But the strangest thing of all to us, seems to be that after abolishing tariff and revenue and imports, and making a dead level of free trade, the convention should have thought it worth while to pass other resolutions as to the conduct and management of the general government, as if there would be any government to administer after that.

If this is a true draft of the work the Democracy of the United States have laid out for themselves, the Republican party need have no fear of the next election. Ohio, which has been a doubtful State for some years, will not be doubtful now. Few men will be blind enough not to see that this is repudiation, highly refined and elaborated, it is true, but with its disguise torn off, nothing but hideous deformity of repudiation still. Like the nigger in the wood pile, Pendleton does not appear in the convention, but he was there nevertheless. His spirit pervaded all its proceedings, and if search had been made, no doubt the nigger would have been found concealed in the woodpile.

TWENTY-ONE thousand Irish people left the port of Liverpool in the month of May, says an exchange, on their way to find a home in the United States. At this rate there will soon be so few Irish in Ireland that it will not be worth while to make any further fuss about England's oppression of the "Green Isle." In fact, it is doubtful whether New York is not now a more Irish city than Dublin; sure it is that Irishmen have not more political influence any where then they have in Gotham. It would be just as well, therefore, to finish the Fenian agitation by appropriating the money used to get up such magnificent and effective raids as the late one on Canada to bringing the Irish population still in Ireland to this side of the waters, en masse. It would be sufficient retribution for England to see Ireland again covered with snakes and jungle; while all the countrymen of St. Patrick would either be holding office in N. Y., or some other part of the United States, and assisting to build up a nation that in time will overshadow the "mistress of the seas," and unless she behaves herself, will wipe her from the maps. What a field for Fenian effort, and what a consumation to inspire Fenian ardor.

The Cubans, it seems, are using "Quaker guns," probably to make up for the lack of the genuine material.—A wooden cannon was recently captured by the Spaniards, near Santo Spiritus, in the insurrectionary district. The success of the use depends on whether there is a McClellan among the Spaniards.

Fifteen cases of small-pox were reported in Brooklyn last week.

THE TARIFF IN THE HOUSE.

The Revenue Reformers have been forced to show their hands. Henceforth they may be better known as the RevenueDestroyers. The question was one of the reduction of taxes and duties. It was a question of taking forty-five millions of direct taxation from the burdens of the people;—of taking twenty millions off the duties which they profess to regard as so enormous. Did these Revenue Reformers hasten to aid this proposition of relief? Were they eager for lower duties;—keen to diminish the load of the burdened people;—alert to aid by voice and vote the removal at one stroke of sixty-five millions?

They were too wise to commit themselves to open opposition,—that would have been fatal. But they resisted progress. They quarreled with details. They were ready for everything save what the necessities of the Government and the condition of the House made practicable. They skulked behind the Democrats, encouraged filibustering, quibbled over minutiæ, avoided going on the record, and did their best in an underhanded, indirect, disingenous way, to defeat the very objects they porfessed to seek. They had been for a reduction of taxes—here it was, to the extent of forty-five millions, and it got no aid at their hands, so long as they could possibly retard without actually opposing it. They had been for a reduction of duties,—here it was on the necessaries of life, and on Pig Iron whereof they had so dolorously made lament, and they hung back till Schenck drove them into a corner from which they could not escape. Coffee Tea, Sugar, the poor man's luxuries, were perpetually cited as the monstrosities of Tariff iniquity;—here was a proposition in the poor man's interest, and they did their best, like the Priest and the Levite, to cross over and pass it by. They were in favor of the theory of reduction in taxes and duties, but against its enforcement. They professed to want moderate duties. What they did want was Free Trade. They called themselves Revenue Reformers. What they wanted to make themselves was Revenue destroyers.

We heartily rejoice that without their aid, and in spite of their false friendship, the Republican party has been able to add to the financial honors of this Administration by offering a reduction of Sixty-five Millions in the popular burdens. The payment of the Debt goes on. The prospects of funding the remainder at a largely reduced rate of interest are brighter. The Government fulfills and means to fulfill all its obligations to the letter. And it is able, meanwhile, to take two-fifths off the duty on Coffee and Tea, to reduce largely the duty on Sugar, to concede two dollars per ton to the perpetual clamor against the duty on Pig Iron, and to add largely to the articles on the free list. All this is accomplished in the bill which, after the most virulent opposition, has just been forced through the House; and in addition the Ways and Means Committee has been instructed to report a bill removing altogether the duty on Coal. The bill passed is not altogether such as we would have it; but it is a measure of substantial and in the main judicious relief,—opposed, wherever opposition seemed safe, by the Revenue Reformers, and carried by the persistent efforts of the Tariff men. We joyfully announce its passage, and look confidently to the Senate for approval.—Tribune.

REPUBLICAN OR PROTECTIONIST?

(From the Industrial Protector.)

We have received copies of a correspondence between Mr. Samuel J. Reeves, a distinguished manufacturer of this city, and Mr. Daniel J. Morrell, a member of the United States House of Representatives from the Cambria district in this State. Mr. Reeves, indignant at the condition of affairs threatened by the neglect to properly protect industries of the nation, states his convictions that if the Republican party proposes to abandon the doctrine of protection, then it is time the party itself should be abandoned. The ground has long been taken by the North American that the only very important issue now before the country is that of protection versus free trade, and we have urged that without the advocacy of protection the Republican party becomes a useless thing to us, and must give place to some more fit expedient of the true interests of the country.

In this much the sentiments of Mr. Reeves are our own; but we are convinced that the great majority of the party is a unit on this question, and the effort should be to drive out all who cannot be converted. Mr. Morrell, in his reply, very truly says that if the Republican party has been derelict, the Democratic party has been worse. In the ranks of that pestilent organization we find nothing but enemies, though some few who represent districts dependent on protection for life occasionally vote right for fear of their constituents. Mr. Morrell considers the Republican party, under any circumstances, a better conservator of public property than its rival; and he gives at some length arguments to show how much has really been done toward preventing the prostration of our industries. To secure the final success of the doctrines of which he has himself always been an earnest advocate, he thinks the great need is agitation and instruction of the masses over the whole country. This requires a thorough organization of all the industrial interests of the country; and Mr. Morrell takes especial exception to the fact that those most directly interested or maintain protection have been unwilling to yield their private convenience so far as to present in Washington to furnish to their Representatives means and facts to meet the continued assaults of a well-organized free-trade column. The letter of Mr. Morrell closes as follows:

I believe it to be the destiny of the Republican party that it shall continue in existence as long as there is a great wrong to be uprooted or need of a true patriotism to be inculcated; and in meeting this new issue of protection or free trade its humanity and patriotism are alike invoked. The American people must decide whether they will protect the industry of the whole country, or commit themselves to a foreign policy which leads to poverty and barbarism. I do not fear their decision. They will sustain the Republican party, and in sustaining it they will sooner or later establish industrial independence and cover the land with blessings.

If, here and there, in the struggle that is sure to come, Republicans who have been educated in the school of free trade shall drop out of our ranks to go over to the enemy, we will gain from that portion of the laboring masses heretofore opposed to us recruits who will more than make good our losses, and and who will bring over to our side from the workshop and the field an army of courageous supporters of the cause of American industry.

COMMISSIONER WELLS.

(Correspondence Sunday Dispatch.)

The persistent and indefatigable attacks of Judge Kelley upon Mr. Welles, the special Commissioner of the Revenue, have at last told upon that gentleman. Not all his replies to Kelley, nor his endless pamphlets and reports—the purpose of which was to show that the rich are becoming richer and the poor poorer in this country, and that the way to evade such a catastrophe was to become tributary to England—have sufficed to retain him in his office. His friends have been boring the President almost to death for the last two months for the purpose of having him reappointed; for it will be remembered that his term expires on the 30th instant, owing to the fact that he was left high and dry by Congress refusing to appropriate money to pay his salary. Somebody has said that the Lord never makes a mistake in stamping a die upon any of His workmanship. As a general rule I have found this an excellent truism, and I confess I have more faith in physiognomy than in phrenology. Welles bears the stamp of a sneak, not only in his face, but in all his movements; and I think there is little doubt, in the minds of those who are at all familiar with the facts, that, while he has been receiving a salary as an officer of the Government, he has been doing all he could to bring us under the yoke of the British free traders. I understand, moreover, that he has been quietly at work with certain quasi Republicans trying to organize a new party upon the platform," whatever that may mean. I think this fact, coming to the ears of President, had a good deal to do with Welles' failure to secure a reappointment, though he is mainly indebted for his ill fortune to the sledge-hammer blows of Judge Kelly.

For the Republican.

CENTRE HALL, June 14, 1870.

Col. W. W. BROWN:—We have seen the "Elephant;" not Van Amburg's; but the one escaped from the glades of York, and ensconced himself in the menagerie of the Gould National, where he exhibited his docility and expertness with his trunk, of drawing corks and emptying the contents of manufactured E du de Luse between his ivories, delighting the boys, and making the vulgar stare, in his antick attempts to stand on his head. Mr. Gould the proprietor who is acknowledged to be a kind, affectionate and dutiful man, in all his domestic relations, seen that his Elephant, Brain-canard, alias McCracken, was becoming toadyfied, swelling up, becoming nasty, cleaving to other animals, and neglecting the better half. Let him run, and the $250. And, in roaming about, seeking whom he might devour, makes his lair in the coal-jungles of Shortland, where he was quietly caught, fed on black hellibore, and drenched with the essence of envy, by his proprietor, which enables the animal to spout forth their united virus upon the respectable, just and good spectators, and the invective missiles gauzed over in "Plain Words," "to accomplish the defeat of Hon. Wm. H. Armstrong, present member of Congress from the 18th District, believing him to be a paid and mercenary tool, and a sycophantic aristocrat."

We might have been taken by surprise, by this awful announcement, had not the Watchman and the Reporter sounded the bugle note ten days before that Brain-canard in "Plain Words" was to assist them to defeat the Republican Congressman, Hon. W. H. Armstrong, nolens volens.

Why McCrackens forerunners, the Watchman and the Reporter, proclaims in "Plain Words" the object of this reunion before the advent of the "weekly paper, devoted to the best interests of the Republican party, unharmed by sect, ring or clique" (?) appeared. "We have always labored hard to make any journal with which we have been connected a success, and source of pride and interest," says the modest gentleman. But, alas! the success, where is it? Echo answers, where? The pride and interest" blighted the adulsion effort, and killed the "plowman or Editor" before "two years terminates, yet intends "to remain for years, to come in one capacity or the other, considering them both a grand calling on its programme, ministers and women accepted." Which of the women? Clodhopper, more fitting than Editor, is manifest. The plowman should not look or presume on nature's decrees. I'll be captain, said the urchin. You fellows "don't know nothin';" and if you Republicans re-nominate Wm. H. Armstrong for Congress, he will be defeated by "Plain Words," Watchman and Reporter; that's a fixed fact, "He is a sycophantic aristocrat," and procured the appointment of G. B. Campbell, a plasterer, a mere private soldier in the late war, born in your county, Marshall, to take the census, over me, who had been nearly one year in your county and State, doing my best to enlighten you in the Local Department of the National. I was your instructor and director in Republican principles, which you needed, and how was I rewarded by Armstrong in this respect? He selects Campbell, a true Republican, to-be-sure, but a mechanic—a mud-pedler, who never was an Editor, over ME, for Marshall; and, for doing this the Republican party of the Eighteenth District must defeat him, for the confederation Editors of Plain Words, Watchman and Reporter must, and will be revenged. We then have the hiccoughs of the great disappointed on the Senatorial question in Plain Words. He makes proclamation, "O, Yes! O, Yes! Centre county is entitled to a Senator, and it rests with the thoughtful men of the party to determine whether the county shall secure her deserts, or, by countenancing and fostering evil-working bickerings, allowing the nomination of a weak, average and of-no-account candidate, &c.," then tells the Republicans, "We want a man who has been thoroughly identified with the building of the L. C. & S. C. Railroad; a man who will demand, and determinedly insist on an equal apportionment of public moneys in aid of internal improvements"—and ME, W. H. H. Brainerd, understood.

Then comes the finale: "We have such men in this county, and they would be acceptable to our sister counties, (of course, he knows all about it,) and it shall be Plain Words' aim to secure the nomination of one of them."—This is very clever of Plain Words, under the circumstances, as he tells the Republican party of Centre county, they "want, in its public councils, less stereotyped goodness, incapacity; more brains, power, vigor and will," and to fill up the hiatus, feelingly informs us he will make us respectable and powerful by reading and following the dictates of W. H. H. Brainerd & Co., in Plain Words.

In fact, we are fortunate in our ignorance, to have this imported Gen. de arms amongst us, to instruct the benighted Republicans of Centre county who to nominate, and who to vote for, under the penalty of being defeated by the alliance of Plain Words, the Watchman, and the Reporter. The fling made at the Watchman, by Plain Words, is easily understood, and perfectly understood by the confederation parties. Let the Republicans remember that Judas kissed when he betrayed.

UNIONVILLE, PA., June 13, 1870.

Col. BROWN—SIR:—If agreeable to you, I wish to ask you a few questions, and first, If you told the truth in your last paper, when you stated that the stockholders of the National sold you that paper because they wanted peace in our party, and that you purchased it with no other object in view than to secure peace in our ranks, and victory in the county, why is that a new paper called Plain Words is about being started?—Why is it that Mr Brainerd, in his new paper declares open war upon Hon. W. H. Armstrong, our member of Congress? Is it because he was disappointed in the Deputy Marshallship of the Bellefonte District, or is it for the purpose of black mailing that gentleman?

I have been a subscriber to the National from the first, and paid for it in advance, and I very well know that when this fellow Brainerd, was an applicant for that position, a very flattering notice of Mr. Armstrong appeared in its columns. Then Mr. Armstrong was a gentleman—a strong-minded man; a first ate Congressman, and the people's friend. What has he done since to bring about so sudden a change in the mind of this man Brainerd? I can see nothing but the Marshallship, and that withheld from Brainerd.

In the second place, Who are the men in your midst, claiming to be Republicans, who are giving aid and comfort to the project of starting a new paper which openly and defiantly declares that its object is to oppose Mr. Armstrong, and thus create discord in the district and disorganization in the county? The people here would like to know.

I can assure you that the Republicans here will show no countenance to any paper, man, or set of men, who will attempt to create a split in our party. We were all glad when you got the National, and we have all determined to support you, and aid your paper in every possible way, and to frown down every thing which looks like copperheadism in a new dress. Do your duty like a man. Fight for our principles as we know you can fight, and rest assured that you have nothing to fear. The people here will send you a good report soon.

A REPUBLICAN.

For the Republican.

R. B. BARGER & Co.; Gentlemen:—I have acted with the Republican party ever since I had a vote. I voted the good old Whig ticket for seven years before the Republican party was organized. I served my country for nearly four years during the late rebellion, and bear honorable scars. I believe that no party ever organized in the United States has done so much for the country—so much for the people—the masses of the people—as the Republican party.

I love the party, and its principles, and I firmly believe that, to it, the people owe all they enjoy of civil and religious liberty.

I believe that the Democratic party is the foe of liberty—the people's enemy—the best friend of England. I do not like anything which savors of Democracy, for this reason: I do not like the movement now going on in Bellefonte to start a new paper—a disorganizing sheet—"Plain Words."

The Republicans of Milesburg and Boggs township will sustain the REPUBLICAN, because it advocates our principles, and is the workingmens' friend.

I have conversed with quite a number of our best citizens, and they have declared to me that, if they want the Tyrone Herald, they will send to that place and get it; but they cannot see why Mr. Jones should join with Mr. Brainerd and his associates to publish a paper in this county for the purpose of distracting the Republican party, and abusing its public men. In my opinion, Mr. Jones will find he has caught a Tartar, and will heartily wish—and that before long—he had remained at home, and attended to his own business.

I know that the people here are tired being taxed for two papers, and were rejoiced when they learned of the consolidation of the REPUBLICAN and National. What we we want here, and what the party wants, and all it wants, is one good, strong and vigilent paper, and that one well sustained.

I was highly pleased with your last number, enlarged and improved, and, while I do not want to flatter you, I must say to you, the Republicans here want no better paper.

Go on as you have commenced. Continue the REPUBLICAN as the organ of the Republican party, and the peoples defender, and you need have no fear of Democratic or Guerrilla enemies.

Very respectfully,

"INDEX."

MESSRS. EDITORS:—I see in your paper of June 1st., 1870, a report of the cases of three preachers who were indicted for preaching the Gospel in the State of Missouri, in violation of a law of that State, requiring all preachers of the Gospel to take the test-oath prior to their preaching in said State.

It appears, from this report, that these three unfortunate preachers were put upon their trial as criminals. The first case was that of a man professing to be a christian preacher, who finally agreed that he belonged to the party usually, but wrongfully called Campbellites. He admitted that he taught the doctrine that to be Baptised according to the Gospel of the Son of God was being born again. The Judge ruled that he was not guilty, as, in his judgment, the Gospel did not teach the doctrine he held. In this case the ruling of the Judge was wrong, as their can be no doubt of the guilt of this preacher.

The second case was that of a Methodist preacher. In this case I have no doubt the Judge was right in his ruling, in as much as the preacher was indicted for a violation of the law, or order of the General having charge of the military district, by which the preacher of the Gospel was required to take a certain oath before he could be permitted to preach the Gospel in that State. This preacher had either refused or neglected to subscribe to this oath prior to his preaching in said State, and, accordingly, he was put upon his trial as a criminal, and in the examination of this case, it was found, to the satisfaction of the Judge, that he was not guilty of preaching the Gospel, but merely promulgating the opinions of some other men. The point upon which his case turned was, infant sprinkling as christian Baptism. The Judge ruling that he was not guilty of the charge laid in the indictment, in as much as the doctrine of infant sprinkling could not be found in the Gospel. The Judge being thus satisfied, ordered this preacher to be discharged.

Now it would appear from the above cases that it was a matter of indifference what men preached in that district, or State, so long as they did not preach the Gospel. Indeed it would seem that he was free to preach any ism he chose, so that he was clearly outside of the Gospel of the Son of God. He might, with perfect impunity, preach Mormanism, Spiritualism, Abolitionism, Infant Baptism—anything, indeed, that would not stand the test of the Gospel.

It is clear that the Infidel Jews, in the days of the Apostles, were no worse than these rulers, requiring this test oath, for they merely forbade their inspired men to teach in the name of the Son of God.

I am satisfied that all of the preachers in this place, with whom I am acquainted, or whom I have heard preach, might be tried on the same principle that this Methodist preacher was, and be found innocent of the charge of preaching the Gospel, for I know of no preacher in this borough who does not preach and practice infant sprinkling as christian Baptism.

TRUTH AGAINST FALSEHOOD.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:—The following from the new Democratic organ recently started by Mr. Brainerd, surprised us not a little, and we are at a loss to know whether the attack was prompted by the naturally mean spirit of the Editor, or made at the bidding of his masters who are using him as a tool to distract the Republican party:

"Mr. Gould, its proprietor, he became recklessly involved with every customer with whom he had dealings, that the position of editor of the National was one of great embarrassment. A man of no financial ability, and, as we believe, little or no regard for his personal word, making scores of fair promises, simply to break them, the only wonder about the National is that it succeeded in living as long as it did, under his management, and dying so respectable a death—$4,000. This last may properly be set down to the fact, that at its decease, he was not its publisher. Toward Mr. Gould we entertain no personal enmity, our feelings only extend to the length of $250."

Mr. Brainerd's complaint that his "position of Editor of the National was one of great embarrassment," we know is true, but the embarrassment was caused by his dissolute habits, it being well known in this community that he scarcely breathed a sober breath from the time he came to this county, until he joined the Good Templars. Our office was constantly disgraced by him, our business injured, and we only kept him at the solicitation of several gentlemen, with the hope that he might reform, become a useful man, and go back again to his broken-hearted family he so basely deserted.

Mr. Brainerd's next complaint—that "we had no financial ability, and no regard for our personal word," was doubtless prompted by the outgushings of his honest (!) heart. We admit, Mr. Editor, that we are no match for Brainerd as a financier—he is by far too smart for us (and many others). At the West he proved that he had a master mind, and our friend Levi A. Miller can testify to the fact that he fully maintains his reputation here. As regards veracity, we cave, when brought in contact with Brainerd. Truth is his best hold. "Truth Must Prevail," is his watch-word, and we solemnly believe that he will stick to his favorite motto, until a lie will serve him better.

Brainerd's claim—that we owe him $250—is simply ridiculous. He does not claim that amount in the bill he has put in the hands of Mr. Love, his Attorney, and that bill will be very materially reduced by money paid him which he kept no account of, besides a considerable amount we have ascertained he has collected and forgot to account for, (the same as he did by you, Mr. Editor, while in your employ.)

We have always treated Mr. Brainerd with courtesy and kindness, and have now no desire to injure him, neither do we propose to submit to his scurrilous attacks, and we desire him to fully understand that unless his warfare on us ceases, we will publish an exposition of his transactions in the West, that will be very apt to wind up his career in this locality, and make it as convenient for him to leave this place as suddenly as he "once upon a time," left a certain other community.

"TRUTH MUST PREVAIL."

FREE PEW SYSTEN.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—

This system has many objections and few if any arguments in its favor. I have seen the result of both systems, for at least fifteen or twenty years, being an attendant of two different churches, one having rented pews and the other having free pews; both churches being under the same pastor's charge. My experience, from close observation has been this: The free pew church always had more confusion, greater anxiety and less devotional appearance and comfort. Mrs. A. would enter the church with two or three children, start up the aisle gaping on either side, to find a seat that she and her children could sit together, everyone would stare at her; but console themselves with the thought that the seats were free and they had as much right as any one else to them, on she would go, till at last she would have to crowd Jennie into a seat, a little further and Robby was pushed into another, and Mrs. A. still further on. That mothers anxiety was so intense, watching Jennie a while and then Robby, that she got little good of the sermon. The dear little ones too thought it so cruel that they could not sit along with mamma and nearly broke their little hearts, wondering why. Robby fell asleep with no place to rest his head, save upon the back of the seat, and in this unnatural position, his head began to ache causing him to cry, and mamma had to leave the church to comfort the little fellow. Mr. B., a kind and affectionate father (a model of christian piety,) with a half dozen of boys, was a constant attendant.

Imagine his grief when being told that his boys always managed to get near the door and after service commenced, slipped out to meet some designing companions. Had a careful eye been over these promising youths to prevent the first step, how different would have been the result! "Train up a child in the way he should go." Mr. and Mrs. C. were always in a torture to know whether Charlie was in or not, looking here and there over the church to get a glimpse of him, but not seeing him was uneasy all the time. Mrs. D. had two blithsome little girls, who when out of her presence were continually having their fun, each would manage to get into a seperate seat with as many other little companions as possible, and then try to keep up the fun during the service. The mother making all sorts of faces at this one and then at that one; but the two could not be both watched at the same time, being in different seats. The result of this system was partially illustrated a short time since—the minister had to stop in his discourse and chastise some little girls in the congregation for their laughing. Had these little girls been in a seat with their parent, without a doubt, the painful duty of chastisement would have been avoided. The church with rented pews always had a quiet and devoted appearance, everybody sitting comfortably in family groupes, the true picture of home, nature and heaven. Strangers can always be better entertained or seated where the pews are rented. Each pew-holder having the privilege of taking his own friends into his seat, and should there chance to be any entire strangers, ample provisions can be made for them by ushers. Families should not be separated.

LOCAL ITEMS.

EAGLE WORKS.—We are pleased to learn that the Messrs. Curtin, Proprietors of the Eagle Iron-works, were not much damaged by the flood.

DAMAGE.—We learn that T. R. Reynolds,&Co.,although their dam at the Phenix mill was not broken,sustained considerable damage by the flooc on last Saturday.

ICE CREAM.—H. D. Yeager has his Ice Cream Saloon fitted up in most excellent style, and invites his friends and the public generally to call and partake.

LOSS.—McCoy, Linn & Co., of the Milesburg Iron works, we are sorry to learn, were heavy losers by the flood. The amount of their loss has not been reported to us.

PROGRESSING.—The new brick building now being built by Messrs. Irwin & Wilson, hardware dealers, is progressing rapidly. It will be a beautiful building when finished.

TORN UP.—The board-walk leading from Bush's Arcade to Mr. Ronion's bowling-alley, near the big spring, was torn up, and much of it swept away by the flood. It will soon be re-laid.

FREE ENTERTAINMENT.—A free entertainment will be given, at the Courthouse, on Wednesday evening, the 22nd inst., by the pupils of the Bellefonte Academy. Doors open at 7½ o'clock. Exercises will begin at eight.

Levi A. Miller, with whom you are all acquainted, told us, a day or two since, that he has on hand the best tobacco and cigars in town. As we have never known Levi to depart from the the truth, we shall not now call his veracity into question.

IT is a mystery to us, and doubtless is to hundreds of their customers, how Zimmerman Bro's & Co. can afford to sell their splendid assortment of goods at the astonishingly low figures they do. But they do, whether we, or any other man, is astonished.

ACADEMY.—An examination of classes has been commenced in the Bellefonte Academy, which will be continued every day, forenoon and afternoon, until the close of the term, at which parents, and friends of the school, and all others interested in the cause of education, are cordially invited to be present.

THE FESTIVAL.—The Straw Berry Festival, for the benefit of the Young Mens' Christian Association, held in Bush's Arcade, on last Friday and Saturday evenings was, in consequence of the rain, not as successful as it otherwise would have been. We have not learned the sum realized by the Association.

PLENTY.—Work for laboring men appears to be plenty since the great flood. Work, work, and money, money, is what the people want. English free trade, and the Democratic slave-holder's rebellion have nearly ruined our country. The Republican party and the good sense of the workingmen will soon bring all things to rights again.

DISTINGUISHED.—We were honored on Tuesday last, by a pop visit, from the excellent Marshall of the Philipsburg district, Mr. Thomas Crissman. We found him to be a whole-souled honorable gentleman, and a good and true Republican—one in whom there is no guile. He is a true type of the working gentlemen and will by his conduct as marshall prove the wisdom of Mr. Armstrong and his friends in selecting him for the position. Call again Mr. Crissman.

CANNED TOMATOES.—Mr. Buck, of Unionville, we understand, has some 500 or 700 cans of Tomatoes for sale, which he offers at the very low price of 20 cts per can.

The Tomatoes were raised and canned by Mr. Buck himself and we, having tested them can vouch for their excellence. He has left a box at the House of Dr. J. D. Wingate, in this place, where persons wishing cheap tomatoes can call. Mr. Buck is one of our best citizens, is full of enterprise and a good Republican withal.

THE WATCHMAN.—Meek has had a great many warnings. He has been frequently urged to repent and change his course. His friends have earnestly plead, entreated, expostulated, but all to no purpose. He would not heed and refused to wash himself from his filth. Providence at length, as it would seem, interferes and on last Friday morning, his basement was nearly full of water—presses, &c., being nearly covered. This should be a warning to Meek. For without a speedy repentence we can assure him that in the country to which he is tending there will be no floods; but plenty of fire.

THAT BREAD.—There was sent to our Sanctum, a few days since, part of a loaf of bread, evidently fresh from the oven, the equal of which, for spunginess, whiteness and magnificence of aroma, we have never, in our recollections seen. We are hugely of the opinion that a lady who can manipulate flour and water—and whatever additional ingredients that are necessary to this palitable compound, of which we are not cognizant—into such a pleasing shape, also possesses every other desirable qualification necessary in a first-class wife. We would like to meet her. We think we would not stand long on the order of "popping the question," provided, always, that we met with favor in her eyes. How's that for high?

LECTURE.—On Thursday evening, the 23d inst., in Reynold's Hall, a lecture will be delivered by Prof. Roberts, graduate of one of our best Colleges—a graduate at the Law-school, and admitted to the Bar of New York—elected, on account of his merit, though but a boy in years, to be Professor of Elocution in the College of the city of New York, we cannot wonder that marked success has attended him in all his entainments. He never fails to instruct and please all his audience. He comes highly recommended by the Press of New York, and is favorably spoken of by those who had the pleasure to here him, in this place, one year ago. We bespeak for him a packed audience.—Doors will open at 7½; performances at 8 o'clock.

Tickets 35 cents; reserved seats 50 cts. Tickets can be had at Wilson's Drug-store, Patton's Jewelry-store and Miller's Book-store.

A PLEASANT VISIT.—Everybody admits that Jno. H. Orvis, Esq., is a good Lawyer, and some of our Democratic exchanges are already speaking of him as the next Democratic candidate for Governor in this State. So far as this is concerned we think Mr. Orvis would have too much good sense to accept a nomination, as there can possibly be no hope for that party in the next Gubernatorial contest, nor in any contest for the next 20 years to come.

Politically we do not think much of Mr. Orvis. Personally we deem him a very clever man and something of an agriculturist. It was to see his stock, his grape vines, strawberries, fruit trees, raspberries, in short his beautiful suburban residence that we paid him a visit a few days since.

We have hundreds of good farmers in Centre county—men who fully understand their business and make it pay, and make it pay well; but it cannot be disputed that we have too many men who dispise what they call "Book Farming," or Scientific Farming and plod along in the same old way in which their fathers travelled fifty years ago, when we had very little science, no railroads or telegraphs, and no Agricultural Schools, or papers devoted entirely to the interests of the farmer.

Mr. Orvis is not only a practical farmer; but he is a scientific farmer, and proves that a man who can make a good lawyer of himself can also be a good farmer. Indeed our practically educated professional men generally make the very best farmers; because they bring into requisition their scientific knowledge. We have already said that Mr. Orvis' home is pleasant and delightful; but his stock—horses, cows, hogs, shouts, poultry, &c., are the very best, and are well worth going to see.

He has about 2½ acres in clover, the best we have ever seen. From this he has fed two horses and three head of cattle all spring, and the ground from which the grass has been cut is hardly discernable. He keeps his stock penned up and mowes the clover,and carries it to them. We are fully satisfied that this is not only the proper, but the best way.

His Chester-whites are perfect hogs—beauties in their way and his treatment of them tells how science will pay, even when applied to hogs. We were well pleased with our visit, and can assure our friends that a visit to his place and a view of his stock will afford them great pleasure.

THE WORKING MAN.—One of our exchanges speaking of the working man says that he is the noblest man of whom our land can boast; whether in the workshop or at the plow, you find the same noble hearted, free and independent being. And if there is a man upon whom we can look with admiration and esteem, it is the independent, sober working farmer, mechanic, or common laborer—whether his toils are endured in the workshop, the field or the coal mine, whether home is in the backwoods or in the neat cottage—our admiration is the same. What a happy picture he presents; what a reward for his labor, by his own unaided exertion, establishes for himself position in society; who commencing in poverty, by his skill and assiduity, surmounts every obstacle, overcomes every prejudice, and finally establishes a character whose value is enhanced by those who come after him. Such a man we prize as the noblest work of which human nature is capable—the highest production she can boast. And let it be borne in mind by the young working man just entering upon the stage of active life—let it ever lay at the foundation and be the loving spring of his efforts—that this situation he must strain every nerve to attain. It can be obtained by all. Untiring industry and virtuous ambition never fail to find their reward. They never yet were exerted in vain, and never will while honesty and justice can find a home in the human breast. It was remarked by an eloquent writer that the working man who had no inheritance but virtue, is the sole king among men and the only man among kings.

Y. M. C. A.—We have received from the State Executive Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association a pamphlet of over on hundred pages, containing the reports of all the Associations in our State, and information as to the work and how to carry it on. From it we learn that the number of Associations in the State is sixty-four, and that they are rapidly increasing—there being almost three times as many as there was last fall. The amount and quality of the work done has improved very much, and the record is highly creditable. It also contains a vast amount of valuable information on the work, articles on Prayer Meetings, Open Air Meetings, Cottage Meetings, Prison Work, Rooms, Libraries, Lectures, Music, Literary and Social Meetings, Conventions, Finances, &c., &c. It is published free, in the interest of the Association work, and copies may be had by addressing T. K. Cree, Chairman State Executive Committee, Pittsburgh. It ought to be in the hands of every Christian man in the State. The following are the members of the State Executive Committee: Thomas K. Cree, Chairman, Pittsburgh; Peter B. Simons, Phila.; Gen. Jas. A. Beaver, Bellefonte; Thos. H. Rabe, Pittsburgh; C. C. Shirk, Erie; H. S. Myers, York, and E. Franciscus, Harrisburg.

TO THE EDITORS OF THE REPUBLICAN:

Would it be asking too much of you to devote, at least a few lines of your valuable paper, for me, to a rantankerous jackass that is pitching, rearing and Bray'nhard to twist plain words, villifications, calumniations, vituperations, &c., into Plain words. He is courting most anxiously to have some notice taken of him—anything to puff him into notice. But his qualification, in low blackguarding and lying are so eminent that his beat is not in this town. Will you get him to let me alone? He is going around among business men for "short" advertisements. His own puffings and notices extending over columns. Dear help those adeancing pay with the expectations that he will honestly fill contracts. That is not his style of doing business.

Very truly yours,

JNO. D. WINGATE.

RIGHT.—The young men of Boalsburg, and Harris township, are opposed to so many Bellefonters coming to that locality for wives. Sheriff Woodring, they say, is not the first Bellefonter that has come there to interfere with their happiness. It is a wonder that the girls there select outsiders for husbands, when they have so many first-class, industrious sober young men in their midst, native, and to the manor born.

THE FLOOD.

Great Destruction of Public and Private Property.

Six Days' Rain.

On last Thursday evening it commenced raining. In a very short time it poured. It continued to pour all night. It rained on Friday, more or less, all day. Friday night it came down in torrents, and raised the waters of Spring creek and Logan's branch higher than they were ever known to be by the "oldest inhabitant." The water was two feet higher on Saturday morning in Spring creek (in Bellefonte) than it has ever been before.

It filled up the basement of the Watchman office, nearly covering the presses and all the material which was in that apartment. The wheel refused to run, and all the hands were compelled to seek shelter in the second story. Water-power may be an advantage sometimes, but Meek concluded, when he saw the water running in at his windows, that too much of a good thing is not desirable. Meek still boasts of his water-power,and yet we think it is of very little more value than the wheel that formerly run the National machinery, but which is now in Milesburg, perhaps, on the hunt of the man who planned and manufactured it—Mr. Swyers, It may,be it has gone on in search of the "White Man's Party," further down the valley. All we know is, that the wheel is not there, while we are enjoying the comforts of the REPUBLICAN office, and our excellent steam engine, in a portion of the town too high for the floods to reach.

The cause of the water being so high on Saturday morning was, no doubt, owing to the breaking of all the dams on Logan's branch, and Harvey Man's dam on Spring creek.

It was a terrible flood. The stream which flows through, or along, Pleasant Gap, and sinks near that village, overflowed its banks and filled up the sink with drift-wood, so that it overflowed, and there was quite a current of water from the sink over the farm of Joseph Comley, to that of Joseph Ross, a distance of one mile and a half, that was never favored with a stream before.—This, flowing into Logan's branch, set that stream crazy, and the result was the breaking of all the dams on that stream, except the Phenix mill-dam, in this town.

The dam at C. Dale's mill was broken; then followed Harvey Mann's dam; then the new dam recently erected by Chas. McCafferty; and, finally, the upper and the lower dams on the same stream, belonging to the Messrs. Valentine.

We understand that the loss to Mr. Dale was, at least, $300. The loss of Harvey Mann, including his Spring creek dam, is not less than $3,000,while the loss of the Messrs. Valentine & Co. is not less than $7,000. Logan's branch is a total wreck, except, as we before stated, the dam of Phenix mill, belonging to Maj. Wm. F. Reynolds.

Logan Foundry, belonging to Captain Geo. F. Bayard, was pretty well cleaned out. The floods came, and, with them, they took the Captain's patterns, chickens, pigs, &c., spottie, fattie, and all amounting to, at the lowest calculation, $500.

The Foundry of Messrs. Todd & Duncan could not escape the general inundation. The race was torn away, the foundry overflowed, and damage to the amount of at least $300 was done them.

Henry Brockerhoff, who owns a mill on Spring Creek at Roopsburg, near this place was a sufferer to the amount of about $1,300.

Shortlidge & Co., dealers in Coal and Lime Burners, were damaged to the amount of about $300,the flood carrying away a portion of the tressle work, leading from the main track to their Lime kiln.

Our especial friend Jacob V. Thomas, a nd one of the best citizens of whom our city can boast, lost his whole night's sleep, by playing sentinel on the border, and watching the brick mill property, the race, &c. If we had known, that his property was in danger we would have been his fellow picket upon this occasion. His loss is estimated at about $200.

The Glass works situate on Buffalo Run, was overflowed but no serious damage.

Our friend Jno. D. Leib, who is engaged in the storing and lumber business at the old warehouse of Thomas & Co., suffered pretty severely; but as yet we have not learned the estimated value of his loss.

The Bellefonte and Snow Shoe Rail Road, was considerably damaged. The road was so much damaged that the cars could not run on Saturday. The loss of this road including the destruction along Wallace's Run, was perhaps $800 or $900. Early on Monday morning, the road was in running order. We cannot say when the repairing was done. If on Sunday, it was certainly all right as a work of necessity and we might say mercy; for the people must have coal—Bituminous coal, and people must travel.

The Bellefonte Planing Mill, S. H. Williams & Co., McCoy, Linn & Co. and C. T. & J. R. Alexander, all suffered more or less, but we have not been able to ascertain the amount. They are all enterprising firms, however, and the damage will soon be repaired.

A House on Wallace's Run, belonging to Geo. Harkless, near the upper school house, was carried away by the flood, the woman, barely, escaping with her children. The Gum Stump Saw Mill dam broke, which caused all the bridges to be carried away—the house, &c., &c.

It will cost Boggs township $2,000 to repair the damages sustained by the flood.

The Rail Road, near Messrs. Curtin's works was considerably damaged; but did not obstruct travel for a day. The fences from Milesburg to Lock Haven, along all the bottoms are swept away. The Sturdevant farm and the Austin Curtin farm, and the Judge Barnhart farm, near Milesburg, suffered much from loss of fences and the overflowing of crops.

All the low lands of the Bald Eagle Valley were inundated and the crops more or less injured. It would be impossible for us to approximate the real loss sustained by our manufacturers and farmers in this county. We shall not attempt to place an estimate upon it.

It was a great flood. The water was two feet higher in Bellefonte than ever before, and all the people, living along the bottom lands of Spring Creek, or Bald Eagle Creek, have suffered more or less. It still continues showering; but we have the divine promise, that so long as His bow is seen in the heavens the earth shall never again be destroyed by water. Upon this promise we rest and feel safe.

LIST OF LOCALS FROM HOWARD.

EDITORS REPUBLICAN:

Your correspondent has been intending for some time past to give you the news of Howard, but in fact the current of things has been running so smoothly until late, that there has been no news to give. However there has come a change, and a sad one too; for within the last few days our eyes were blessed with the view of beautiful green fields becoming rich for the harvest, but which by the recent flood have been utterly ruined, &c., not only that upon which the waters waged, but the beautiful green hillsides have been badly washed and the corn and grain uprooted, and the grass so badly sanded that few anticipate the production of one-fifth of a crop.

The flood was but 3 inches less than the one of '66, and in addition to destroying the crops, carried away bridges and fences, and injured the B. E. V. R. R. in a number of places. The grist mill dam of W. L. Gordon, Esq., was broken and the races so washed as to cause him considerable of a loss apropo —speaking of Gordon's Mills, an item occurs illustrating the economy of our good, study and honest farmers; in the mill above referred to we noticed a number of grain bags with the following names and date thereon, and in a good state of preservation, notwithstanding the long time they have been in constant use:

DANIEL SCHENCK.	HENRICH PLETCHER.
No. 12, 1827.	No. 18, 1822.

DROWNED.—On Saturday, the 11th inst., a man named Wallheiser was drowned at Mill Hall, by the upsetting of his canoe. The full particulars we could not learn.

KILLED.—A young man of Howard, named George Gradon, was killed the same day on Wolf's Run, in Beech Creek, by a log jam. The logs which he was trying to dislodge, suddenly gave way and precipitated him in the flood, where he was crushed and mangled by hundreds of logs rolling over him, and at times throwing him several feet in the air; when found a mile below, he was sitting in a recumbant position upon a log and holding out his hands as if appealing for help. His body was completely denuded of clothing except his boots and shirt collar.

The family of the deceased have been singularly unfortunate—the father having both of his legs broken and thereby maimed for life, and a brother but a few months ago a leg broken by a log jam, from which he has not fully recovered.

SABBATH SCHOOL PIC-NIC.—Seven Sunday Schools of Howard and vicinity, will hold a pic-nic, on July 2nd, and are making every endeavor to have it prove a pleasant affair.

Yours, B.

ALTOONA DISTRICT M. E. CHURCH SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.—The Convention met in the M. E. Church in Hollidaysburg. Tuesday, June 7, 1870, at 10 o'clock; a. m.

Rev. J. S. McMurray was elected chairman, J. G. Love Secretary, and Rev. W. H. Norcross, Assistant Sect.

The Sunday School of the following charges were represented by one or more delegates, including many ministers of the District.

Allegheny, Altoona 1st Charge, Hollidaysburg, Duncansville, Martinsburg, Williamsburg, Logan's Valley, Howard, Bellefonte, Half-moon, Clearfield Station, Clearfield Circuit, Warriorsmark, Glen Hope and Osceola.

On motion it was resolved that all friends of the Sabbath School work, who are present, be invited to take part in the bussness of the Convention.

The morning session was occupied with reports from the School represented. The first question for discussion was "At what age may we with proper religious instruction expect the conversion of our children," was taken up in the begining of the afternoon session, and after a number of earnest remarks by several ministers, and lay men, it was "resolved, that according to the teaching of the Bible, we may expect the conversion of children at a very early age, and therefore, Sabbath School Teachers, even including those having charge of infant classes, should direct all their efforts to this conversion and christian training."

The second question, "What is successful teaching and what is the secret of success," was discussed in an impressive manner by several, among whom was the S. S., agent from N. Y., Rev. J. S. Ostrander.

The hour for adjournment having come the question was laid over until Wednesday morning.

Tuesday evening was appointed for the Annual Sermon by Rev. J. Mullen of Bellefonte. It was truly an able production. The stiring eloquence of the Rev. gentleman doubtless made impressions lasting as life itself. His text was Psalms 144,12.

After the sermon, Rev. J. S. Ostrander entertained the audience with a forcible address on the importance of the Sabbath School work, and the nature, object, and workings of the Sunday School Union.

Wednesday morning, after the adoption of a resolution appointing the next meeting of the Convention on the 4th Tuesday of May, 1871, at Clearfield, Pa., the discussion of the question of yesterday was resumed, and the following resolution adopted:

Resolved, That successful teaching is that,and that only,that reaches its end—the conversion of the soul and the training it for God and Heaven, and that the secret of success lies in the soul consecration of the teacher to God and the work.

On motive, Rev. J. S. Ostrander proceeded to illustrate by blackboard, the best means of Sunday School teaching, showing the requirements of the model teacher in a very instructive manner.

The question "How far may children and youth be employed in the advancement of Christ's Kingdom?" was then taken up, and ably discussed by Rev. J. D. Brown of India, and others, when the question was decided by the adoption of the following resolution. "Resolved, That children and youth may be employed in the enlargement of Christ's Kingdom in many ways, therefore it is the duty of every parent, pastor and teacher to encourage them to devote their time and talent to this end."

Quite a pleasant discussion by Rev. Mr. Blair,of the U. Presbyterian church of Indiana, and others, was carried on, on the question, "What is the reflex operation of Sabbath School instruction upon the personal piety of the teacher;" but the hour fixed for adjournment came before a resolution was adopted.

The afternoon was appointed for a Children's meeting. This was, to many, the best meeting of the entire session. Rev. J. D. Brown, in a very pleasant manner told many things about the children of India,and sang a couple of hymns in the language of the heathen. Stirring addresses by Rev's J. H. McCord, J. Foster Bell, and J. S. Ostrander, interspersed with many beautiful Sunday School Songs by the sweet voiced children, constituted an entertainment that will not soon be forgotten. After passing resolutions of thanks to the people, and pastor of Hollidaysburg for their hospitality, Rev's. J. D. Brown and J. S. Ostrander, for their presence any assistance, and Rev. J. Mullen, for the annual sermon, the Convention adjourned. The children sang "Valley of Blessing" and the Doxology, and all were dismissed with benediction by Rev. J. S. Ostrander.

W. H. NORCROSS,
Assistant Secretary.

[For the REPUBLICAN.

EDITORS REPUBLICAN:

The disastrous flood of Saturday last, should admonish our citizens of the insufficiency of the capacity of the stone bridge, on High street, to vent the waters of Spring Creek under circumstances likely to occur at every heavy rain. During the hight of the flood the entire archways of the bridge were filled with water and the water dammed up against the stonework above the arches. If the volume of water had been increased by the bracking of the planing mill dam, or if the archways had been blocked up by floating timber, what would have become of the beautiful buildings of P. G. Meek, Bush & McClain, I. C. Haupt, or of the building of Geo. Bayard, the machine shop of Todd & Duncan, and the mills of Thomas estate? Without a doubt all would have been destroyed and washed away; no power could have prevented it.

Such being the case what steps are necessary to provide for the future? The answer is, tear out the old bridge and erect a substantial iron structure with a single span, thus affording a free, clear course for the water. Such a proposition will be introduced at the next meeting of our council and I trust our citizens will awake to the necessity of speedy action in the premises, and urge upon councils immediate and prompt action. R.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Grey Hair to its natural Vitality & Color.

A dress which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair, Fresh or gray hair is restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparation dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Breeding Poultry.

It is universally admitted that a continued system of breeding, in the horse, cow, sheep or hog, is sure to produce deterioration. Not only is there a decrease of size, but tenderness of constitution and increased liability to disease.

One of our subscribers was recently telling us of the care he took of his poultry in this particular, not only every season to have a change of roosters, but also in selecting his own stock for keeping over the year, and in selling pairs always to couple those not akin. He informed us that while his neighbors had among their poultry roup, gapes, cholera other chicken diseases, his own stock was and had been entirely free from them. He considered this to be the cause, and there can certainly be no reason why the same objection to it and in breeding should not operate as with other stock.

We apprehend that in selling poultry, very few farmers take pains to pair them not akin, and indeed, there is obvious difficulty in doing so, unless more system and method is introduced into the poultry yard, and more divisions than usual. We have occasionally purchased fowls from a party having a small enclosure, and who feeds high, retaining year after year the same stock. These are large and fine, but we have had them, without any previous warning, drop over suddenly, we presume from something like apoplexy.

The crossing of distinct breeds, making what farmers value as the barnyard fowl, more hardy and better layers than some of the pure breeds, may operate in this way. It is a common remark with those who sell eggs and get their profit from them more than from selling chickens, that they get more eggs from mixture of breeds.

It may be well for poultry breeders to attend to this more than they do.—(Practical Farmer.

Stirring Soil Around Trees.

Opening or lightning the soil around the roots of trees, either in the spring or fall, for the purpose of letting in warmth, and affording a freer medium for the expansion and development of the roots, is of great value in promoting the health and vigor of the tree.—All trees, whether fruit or ornamental, young or old, indigenous or exotic, are vastly benefited by this process.—In old orchards, the soil about trees, and to a considerable distance from them, in every direction, should be carefully broken, and the upper surface, to the depth of three or four inches, removed in the spring, every four or five years. The eggs of the circulio and other insects are deposited in this stratum, and, if not removed or destroyed, will produce insects, the ravages of which the succeeding year will be productive of far greater loss than the expense of removing the soil and replacing it with compost or loam. It is an utterly hopeless undertaking to attempt the cultivation of good fruit when no measures are resorted to, to obviate the fatal ravages of this detestable and insidious foe, and the remedy now suggested is by no means expensive, if we take into consideration the advantages otherwise resulting to the trees from its application.

Any good soil, taken from the open fields, or cultivated lands, may be used as a substitute for compost, and a very small quantity will suffice. Even if no fresh matter is applied, I would recommend the removal of the surface soil, and would replace it when convenient. Chip manure, or old dung, covered with straw, answers well for that purpose.—Germantown Telegraph.

Mowing Land.

Early in the month go through the grass after a rain, and pull docks and other coarse weeds. Only a careful man should be trusted to do this work; boys are not careful enough nor strong enough; and with the best will, will tug and strain at a big root and trample down a square yard of grass. Begin mowing as soon as the clover blossoms, and before the ox-eyes are out. When the later abound, the grass should be cut before they come into full blossom, as fewer seeds will mature, and the hay from them will be much better.—If the weather be favorable, and the grass light, that cut with a machine after 5 P. M., may be put in windrows, before 12 o'clock the next day, and got in the same afternoon, without turning or shaking out, and making almost first quality hay. Heavy clover may be cut at evening or after the dew is off in the morning, and be tossed and tedded constantly until it can be raked up, say 2 o'clock, then put in cocks; shaken out by 9 or 10 the next day, tossed and turned repeatedly, and secured in the afternoon. Clover hay ought not to be too dry, and should either be cured in masses or kept warm either by its own heat, which is apt to go too far, or by constant airing and sunning. In "catching weather."

To Transport Eggs.—It is well known that eggs which it is designed to set for chickens are injured by transportation by railway, and we constantly see complaints of ill success in the agricultural papers.

Now eggs can be transported to almost any distance by rail, if instead of being carried on the floor of the car as they generally are, they are suspended in a box or basket so that they are not so much subject to the jar of the rail. If hung up from the top of the car, or on the hat rack, if taken in the passenger car, they will escape injury and hatch about as well as ever.

Churning should be slow at first until the cream has been thinned and becomes a uniform mass. The motion may then be increased, but not to too great an extent, else undue heat may be generated and the butter become frothy. Butter should come in thirty or forty minutes; if much sooner, it will be soft, and acquire a bad taste. Metalic churns, as those wherein metal forms a promiment part, should never be used, as such affect the flavor of the product unfavorably.

Cost Of Raising Corn.

The Boston Journal of Chemistry has some remarks on this subject worthy of notice. The editor says he devoted six years of careful attention to this crop. It has been cultivated under every disadvantage with hired labor, in wet and cold, and in hot and dry seasons, but the cost has averaged less than fifty cents per bushel. He adds that "a crop of corn that gives only twenty or thirty bushels per acre does not pay; but one that gives seventy or eighty or a hundred does pay. We have never raised less than seventy bushels to the acre, although our farm was exhausted when we took hold of it." He plows in autumn, and spreads the fresh manure in spring. It is harrowed well and the soil perfectly pulverized. Each hill has a handful of the enriching mixture of ground bones and ashes, thrown around the hill and scattered over it before planting. In our experience, manure spread in autumn and diffused in timately through the soil by solution, is worth twice as much as when applied in the spring; but any manure, fresh or rotted, if thoroughly broken and worked into the soil by repeated harrowings, is far more effective than when left in lumps or but partly intermixed. If planting in hills gives the editor of the Journal seventy bushels per acre, drill culture would yield not less than eighty five or ninety, other thing being equal.

How To Force Radishes.—According to Galignani's Messenger, radishes may be grown in a few days by the following somewhat singular method:

Let some good radish seed soak in water for 54 hours, then put them in a bag and expose it to the sun. In the course of the day germination will commence. The seed must then be sown in a well manured hot bed, and watered from time to time with lukewarm water. By this treatment the radishes will, in a very short time, acquire a sufficient bulk, and be good to eat. If it be required to get good radishes in winter, during the severe cold, an old cask should be sawn in two, and one-half of it filled with good earth. The radish seed, beginning to shoot as before, must then be sown in, the other half of the barrel put on top of the full one, and the whole apparatus carried down into the cellar. For watering, lukewarm water should be used, as before. In the course of five days the radishes will be fit to eat.

Shoo, Fly!—The following is said to be a protection of the horse from flies in hot weather. The experiment can be easily tried, and without cost.

Take two or three small handfuls of walnut leaves, upon which pour two or three quarts of cold water; let it infuse one night, and pour the whole next morning into a kettle and let it boil for a quarter of an hour. When cold it will be fit for use. No more is required than to moisten a sponge, and before the horse goes out of the stable, let those parts which are irritable be smeared over with the liquor, viz: between and upon the ears, the neck, the flanks, &c.

The question of the removal of the county seat from Ebensburg to Johnstown is making quite a stir among the good people of Cambria county, and creating considerable warmth of feeling. The Johnstown Tribune of Fri. day contains "an appeal" in favor of removal, signed by upwards of nine hundred citizens of the county and addressed "to the people without distinction of party," in which they pledge themselves to support no candidate for the Legislature who will not, if elected urge the passage of a bill to remove the county seat to Johnstown.

News received from Fort Stevenson, Dakota territory, states that a party of Sioux Indians near that point had attacked a party of Cheyennes, killing one and wounding several others.—The Cheyennes to the number of about eight hundred lodges were terribly exasperated, and were threatening war to the knife against the Sioux. Four or five other tribes had manifested a disposition to unite with the Cheyennes in their work of revenge, and there is a prospect of bloody times among the savages in that region.

Dr. O'Leary says: "If you ever see one of those turtle dove pairs who are always 'my loving,' 'my dearing,' 'my ducking,' each other." says the doctor, "you may set it down that one or the other will die of heart disease or consumption within three months, and it is almost invariably the woman who dies. Those women," he adds, "who always scold and speak crossly to their better halves they never have the consumption or die of heart disease."

The returns from the Oregon election are meagre. The indications are that the Legislative contest is close. The returns indicate that Grove, the Democratic candidate for Governor, is elected by about four hundred majority The Portland telegrams say that the election passed off quietly, the city and county going Republican by about three hundred majority. The State is considered very close, the Republicans gaining several counties.

The speediest cure for blistered hands and feet is to light a tallow candle, and let the melted tallow drop in cold water, then mix the tallow with strong spirits, and rub it thoroughly into the palms or soles; this is both a preventive and curative.

New York savings banks have over seven million dollars of unclaimed deposits, and it is proposed that they shall build from these funds a home for disabled soldiers and sailors, and an asylum for the orphans of the slain.

The Montreal, Witness informs its readers that Thomas Failey, the Deputy United States Marshal who was most active in arresting O'Neill is a Catholic Irishman, a native of Vermont."

Our hogs came from England. The original hog brought hither by Canadian and New England colonists was a direct descendant from the wild boar of English forests.

COMPLETION OF THE PACIFIC RAILROAD.

GREAT RUSH TO STERNBERG'S.

Sung to the Tune of Yankee Doodle.

The Great Pacific Railroad's laid,
From ocean unto ocean,
And now comple connection's made,—
An enterprising notion.

The mighty work at last is done,
So speedily and brisk, oh!
And now in ten days we can run
From here to San Francisco.

No more we take the ancient route,
The stage, a horrid slow thing;
It banged the passengers about,
And wore out all their clothing.

Chorus, for the end of each verse:

The Great Pacific Railroad's laid,
From ocean unto ocean,
And we buy clothes from A. Sternberg,
A most delightful notion.

Through passengers by the Pacific Railroad will call at the store of A. Sternberg, before starting, and provide themselves with a complete outfit of the elegant and substantial Spring and Summer Clothing, the very best assortment of which will always be found at A. Sternberg's Store.

People who travel by other routes, and also people who, instead of traveling by any route at all, prefer to stay at home, can find the most superior and seasonable garments, for every occasion, of every variety, and at the lowest prices.

Do not fail to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere; if you do not, we are sure you will be sorry that you did not. Our goods are put down to the lowest figure. We sell whole suits, according to quality,

RANGING FROM $6.50 TO $18.00

THE GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

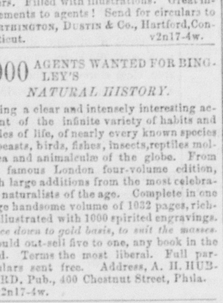
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS.

More Than 500,000 Persons Bear testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY?

THEY ARE NOT A VILE

FANCY DRINK,



Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey Proof Spirits, and Refuse Liquors, doctored spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true medicine, made from the native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the Great Blood Purifier and Life Giving Principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator, of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter, and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell.

$100 will be given for an incurable case provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, and Gout, Dyspepsia, or Indigestion Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

Cause the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins: cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE, and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed.

In Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, these Bitters have no equal. For full directions read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French, and Spanish.

Connected with the mill, and in operation at all times, is one of the latest improved

which leaves the lumber in a perfectly healthy state, assists in preserving it, and in fact adds to its lasting qualities, while other methods of drying deteriorate, and renders it more liable

TO DECAY AND WASTE.

Lumber dried in a Coke kiln, is dried perfectly, and when worked and put up, will not

SHRIVEL AND SHRINK,

thus giving buildings the appearance of having been erected out of Green Material

We know that our facilities give us every advantage over other
